

reducing costs?

intelligent reductions beat panic measures, every time our team have all held posts in acute nhs hospitals as chief executives, directors of operations or finance directors.....some of us have worked for three decades managing costs in nhs hospitals...we understand your issues we have experienced difficult times before and we can see the positive side as well as the challenge....there is always the chance to reduce costs in an intelligent way rather than just 'slash and burn' understand one simple thing - this is not about drawing up a long list of potential savings measures.....it is about reducing current operating costs.....starting now we work with you to get results.....the actions are clear, they are discussed in an open and honest way with the senior clinical faculty the intelligent result is the protection of clinical services and the achievement of cost targets.... not at all impossible and not at all easy

..it is why you call us
